

Town of Kenilworth Passing From the 'Sleepy Village' Stage to Era of Progress

One has only to drive through Kenilworth and out around Lakewood Drive to realize that great strides are being taken by this suburb and what a high class type of resident it is attracting.

This development has proceeded quietly upon the assumption that, with the coming of winter, there is no logical reason for a cessation of building or promotional activities. The men responsible for the development of Lakewood Drive and for the creation of Lake Kenilworth, which is now in process of construction, have very definitely proved their contention that Western North Carolina in general and Kenilworth in particular, is an "all year round country." The results are evident upon every hand as one drives through this modern and attractive suburb. New and handsome homes are in sight. Other and equally attractive homes are being built. Down by Ross Creek there is an imposing scene of bustling activity. A score or more men are busily at work upon the building of a big dam that will hold the waters of Ross Creek and make of Happy Valley a smiling green-shored lake.

Real estate transactions are numerous. A great many sales are reported every month, and that has been true all during the winter. People who are in search of home places are quick to realize the advantages of Kenilworth. Such things as paved streets, lights, bus service and other essentials, are afforded in addition to its being a place of natural beauty. There are no small, treeless lots. Every lot is of a size sufficient to accommodate a real home. Parks have been made and are kept clean and beautiful the entire year round—they are permanently established, beauty spots that provide playground space for children and resting places for grownups.

On the Asheville Booster Tour, Kenilworth is being represented by E. E. Reed who is extending an invitation to Florida tourists to "Motor Home Through the Land of the Sky." He is especially interested in the coming season and since the roads are open now that provide easy access to all parts of the country, it is expected that any efforts put forth to secure travel this way will be productive.
