WILLIAMS NAMED KENILWORTH COP.

Succeeds B. L. Trexler Whose Resignation Was Accepted

Claude Williams, formerly of Colorado Springs, Colo., yesterday was appointed policeman of the Town of Kenilworth succeeding Chief of Police B. Lawrence Trexler, whose resignation Thursday was accepted by the town board. Williams, it was said, has had wide experience in law enforcement circles, having formerly served as a deputy sheriff in several Colorado counties, besides being connected with the traffic department.

F. G. Fleming, who has served as a patrolman in Kenilworth for several years, has been retained and will serve with the new officer. The policemen, it was announced, hereafter will serve directly under the direction of T. P. Johnson, commissioner of public safety of Kenilworth.

The selection of the new officer was made at a special meeting yesterday of the town board composed of Mayor James H. Calne; Dr. E. E. Reed, commissioner of public works; Mr. Johnson, and Mrs. Leah Chiles, commissioner of parks. Trexler has served as chief of police in the town for some time and prior to that affiliation had been a member of the motorcycle police here.

Mayor Calne said last night that approximately $30,000 has been expended by Kenilworth in its recent street widening program and that between $10,000 and $12,000 has been paid out in its new sewer and water system. Another addition included the widening by seven feet of the new entrance from the Biltmore avenue approach.
